Montgomery-Åsberg Depression Rating Scale (MADRS)

The rating should be based on a clinical interview moving from broadly phrased questions about symptoms to more detailed ones which allow a precise rating of severity. The rater must decide whether the rating lies on the defined scale steps (0, 2, 4, 6) or between them (1, 3, 5) and then report the appropriate number. The items should be rated with regards to how the patient has done over the past week.

4 = Appears sad and unhappy most of the time.
6 = Looks miserable all the time. Extremely despondent.

3. Inner tension

0 = Placid. Only fleeting inner tension.
2 = Occasional feelings of edginess and ill-defined discomfort.
4 = Continuous feelings of inner tension or intermittent panic which the patient can only master with some difficulty.
